Mahé Island bears the majority of the Seychelles population. The island is famous for its golden sandy beaches, richest, and most preserved national parks, providing explorers with a wide range of activities. DISCOVER THE ISLANDS

The Inner Islands of Seychelles are scattered between granite Islands and coral islands which are accessible from the main Island. Slightly over a dozen of them have inhabitants while the majority remains uninhabited. The Islands consist of nature reserves which contain the largest population of Coco de mer, a variety of reptile species can be found, and birds in the midst of being extinct roam around freely.

On the other hand, our Outer Islands comprise of 72 low-lying atolls and sand dunes not more than a few metres high known as coralline islands. These Islands are sheltered and engulfed with Palm trees and scrubby plants. Among our Outer Islands, Seychelles has the typical atolls with coral reefs and lagoons.

However our farthest coralline island, Aldabra has developed a mysterious, eroded, lunar formation and has the biggest lagoon. Our Outer Islands, home to over 180 bird species, has the largest population of giant land tortoises in Seychelles and is a popular nesting ground for turtles.
